Dear Parents and Guardians, We appreciate your support and cooperation in our school programs. We would like to share important information regarding this Friday's school field trip. Our school had originally planned an outdoor field trip to Dreamland Amusement Park. However, according to the latest weather forecast, extremely low temperatures are expected throughout Friday. Spending long hours outdoors under these conditions may be potentially unsafe for students. After careful consideration, we have decided to change the location. Instead of the amusement park, students will visit the City Science Museum, where they will participate in guided exhibitions and hands-on learning activities. We kindly ask for your understanding. Sincerely, Michael Thompson Vice Principal

Paul Farmer was an American medical anthropologist and physician. He was born in 1959 in Massachusetts and grew up with an early awareness of social inequality. During his time at Duke University, he lived in Paris for half a year and became fluent in French, which benefited him in his future work in Haiti. After graduating from Duke University, he began volunteer work at a hospital in Cangé, Haiti. He later returned to the United States and earned both a master's degree and a PhD in medical anthropology at Harvard University. In 1987, he cofounded Partners In Health, an organization that works in countries like Haiti, Rwanda, and Peru to provide medical treatment and strengthen public health systems. Throughout his life, he wrote more than ten books and over a hundred academic papers. He received many major awards during his career, and after his death, he was also honored with the WHO DirectorGeneral's Global Health Leaders Award for his lifelong work to improve health for the poor.

달리기의 놀라운 복잡성

49~72

다음 글을 읽고 물음에 답하시오.

If our bodies know best, why are they easily injured when we do something so seemingly natural as running? On the one hand, running seems very easy, but that is only because our bodies are so very good at it. The most powerful supercomputer on the planet cannot administer the enormous number of computations it takes to run, untethered, on two legs. Wherever our running intelligence is, running is not all conscious to us and is so complicated that only the T1000 Terminators of our imagination are able to do it. Because our running knowledge is buried so deeply within muscle fibres, cells and our DNA, we have to accept that we cannot fully explain its complexities. That doesn't mean our bodies don't know how to do it. We may feel our way towards understanding the alchemy of running by learning how to use our senses, getting them firing, and seeing what they are capable of, and accepting that our bodies know more about running than we ever will.

49~51

글의 내용과 일치하면 O 일치하지 않으면 X를 고르시오.

- 49 감각을 활용하면 달리기를 이해하는 데 가까워질 수 있다. (O / X)
- 50 달리기의 복잡성은 의식적으로 분석하면 누구나 완전히 설명할 수 있다. (O / X)
- 51 달리기가 쉬워 보이는 것은 달리기 자체가 단순하기 때문이다. (O / X)

52~54

글의 내용과 일치하면 O 일치하지 않으면 X를 고르시오.

- 52 Running seems easy because the human body performs it exceptionally well (O / X)
- 53 Running requires more computations than even the most powerful supercomputer can administer (O / X)

54 Human beings cannot fully explain running's complexities because its knowledge is deeply embedded (O / X)

55~57 글의 내용과 일치하면 O 일치하지 않으면 X를 고르시오.

- 55 달리기의 복잡성을 완전히 설명하려면 감각보다 의식적 분석을 우선하고, 신체의 무의식적 지식은 연구 과정에서 배제해야 한다. (O / X)
- 56 두 다리로 자유롭게 달리는 데 필요한 계산량은 현재 가장 강력한 슈퍼컴퓨터조차 처리하기 어려울 만큼 방대하다. (O / X)
- 57 달리기가 쉽게 느껴지는 것은 신체가 달리기에 필요한 복잡한 과정을 거의 수행하지 않으며, 의식적 통제가 대부분을 담당하기 때문이다. (O / X)

58~60 글의 내용과 일치하면 O 일치하지 않으면 X를 고르시오.

- 58 Running feels easy because conscious reasoning has successfully reduced its formerly complicated movements into a small set of simple, deliberately controlled physical instructions. (O / X)
- 59 A complete understanding of running depends primarily on replacing bodily intuition with conscious analysis, because sensory experience cannot disclose the mechanisms involved. (O / X)
- 60 Since running knowledge resides in muscles, cells, and DNA, humans can eventually explain every aspect of running by carefully analyzing those biological structures. (O / X)

61~62 주어진 영어 문장의 한국어 해석을 적으시오.

- 61 That doesn't mean our bodies don't know how to do it.

- 62 The most powerful supercomputer on the planet cannot administer the enormous number of computations it takes to run, untethered, on two legs.

- 63 Wherever our running intelligence is, running is not all conscious to us and is so complicated that only the T1000 Terminators of our imagination are able to do it.

(ability / our / No / matter / where) to run comes from, running is largely unconscious and so complex that only the imaginary T1000 Terminators could perform it.

- 64 On the one hand, running seems very easy, but that is only because our bodies are so very good at it.

Running may appear effortless, but only (are / our / bodies / because / exceptionally) skilled at it.
